DAY 04 OF 05

STRENGTH THAT MOVES

Strength that leaves the gym with you.

04

GOAL
STRENGTH

TIME
25–30 MIN

Build strength that supports movement, not just size. Most gym programs build strength that stays in the gym. Movement-based strength trains through basketball-relevant positions — unilateral, controlled, functional. Every rep today should feel strong but smooth. No grinding through force. This is the foundation that makes Day 5 possible.

WHY THIS DAY

Nobody trained me back, so I had to work out what strong enough to play actually meant. It was not what the gym told me. This is the version that held up.

STRENGTH BLOCK Lower body load

01 GOBLET SQUATS

3 × 8

Chest up. Knees track the toes. Sit into it. Full depth with control.

02 DB ROMANIAN DEADLIFT

3 × 8

Hinge at the hips. Slight knee bend. Feel the hamstrings. Back stays neutral.

03 SPLIT SQUATS

2 × 6 EACH LEG

Stay tall. Front heel stays down. Control the descent — 3 sec down.

CORE + SUPPORT BLOCK Stability for movement

04 DEAD BUGS

2 × 8 EACH SIDE

Low back flat the whole time. Slow and deliberate. Never rush.

05 SIDE PLANK

2 × 20 SEC EACH

Hips stacked. Don't let them sag. Breathe steady.

CONTROL BLOCK Single-leg work to finish

06 STEP-UPS (SLOW)

2 × 6 EACH LEG

3 counts up, 3 counts down. No push-off from the back leg. The heel drives.

07 SINGLE-LEG BALANCE

2 × 20 SEC EACH

Slight knee bend. Hold perfectly still. Breathe.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

↑ Strong but not stiff ↑ More stable on one leg ↑ Movements feel controlled

FOCUS Move strong, stay smooth. No forced or grinding reps. Control over load, always. Pick a weight that leaves 2–3 reps in the tank on every set.
